Is made by distilling the skins, pulp, seeds, and stems, left over from winemaking after pressing the grapes. The grappa is then either bottled at once, which creates white grappa (grappa bianca), or aged in wooden casks to create the gold-hued grappa known as riserva.

A M A R O

Italian for "bitter", is an Italian herbal liqueur. It usually has a bitter-sweet flavour, and has an alcohol content between 16% and 40%. Amaro is typically produced by macerating herbs, roots, flowers, bark, and/or citrus peels in alcohol, either neutral spirits (grappa) or wine, mixing the filtrate with sugar syrup, and allowing the mixture to age in casks or bottles.
